Guidelines for our Speakers

Thank you for taking the time to submit your presentation proposal. In your proposal, please consider the following guidelines:

1. We hope to have a healthy proportion of women and non-binary people as speakers; however, we welcome men to submit their proposals as well.
2. We welcome proposals covering the entire spectrum of cyber, e.g., data protection, cyber security, physical security, security awareness, … If you are not sure your topic is what we're looking for, submit it anyway!
3. Our audience is diverse and includes both established professionals and students in their last year of university; please be sure to clarify who your target audience is.
4. We welcome proposals on any topic of interest to this audience, whether it aims to increase participants' knowledge or motivation for the field.
   Examples of topics are technical explanation / demo of a new or often misunderstood technique, analysis, explanation or comparison of a relevant framework or process, personal development story, current trends and future predictions, survey results, academic research, etc.
5. We will not accept any presentations that aim to recruit people to a given organization or that aims to advertise a given product or service.
6. The WIC organizing team has the right to take pictures and record the session and to use it for promotional purposes, such as the website and social media.
